

How did you arrive at Wikipedia.org? - OTHER responses to question

1	"wikipedia" is one of my favorite web sites even it seems some articles could be too exalted and misleading public like only one side view.
2	A dear brother introduced me to Wikipedia when I had to write a paper on certain topics. / I was researching for comprehensive knowledge....
3	Accidentally, when I searched for details about celebrities.
4	all of this and much more
5	Appears as first topic in many search engines. Personally bookmarked Wikipedia several years ago and now often use it first rather than search engines such as Google.
6	Been recommended to me as a reliable source of truth
7	Chrome shortcut where if I type "wiki" and hit tab I can search directly in Wikipedia.

32	I commonly use Wikipedia on my phone, as I am doing research "on the go", so to speak. Within my phone's browser, it has a link for Wikipedia. However, I do not typically use that preset link, but rather, when I need to use Wikipedia, if I know it will be the site I use, I type "W" into my phone's address bar, and the so-called bookmark comes up, which I tap. (It could be considered a bookmark, I guess, but I do not think of it that way, which is why I chose the "Other" option for this question. Other times, I will use Google search to discover what other options I may have for possible research, but then will click on Google's search result for Wikipedia. I also occasionally use other Wiki-related sites, but not as often when I use my phone; for them, I use my iPad, as not everything on those sites may work properly on my older phone. Regardless of which Wiki-site I use, I truly do appreciate that sources need to be cited as well as other such things; if I desired to "prove" a particular fact or piece of information, it certainly helps back it up, so I can see there is more accurate info on a particular topic, instead of things which could be made up and/or completely fabricated. This alone allows me to be able to say that Wiki-sites are 90% or more accurate. Thank you for all you do, and thank you to all the contributors who do an absolutely wonderful job with everything! Please feel free to contact me with any further questions, comments, etc.; I only ask if you do decide to email me back, please put "WIKI SURVEY" (or something similar) in the subject line, so I know it isn't a 'spam' email, but I would be more than happy and willing to help! May our Lord Jesus Christ bless you, also! :-)<>
33	I don't remember. I use it since 2006. It's my favorite site.
34	I hate that Wikipedia opens up into an app when I use my browser (iPhone). If I wanted the app, I would have downloaded it.

37	I have the Wikipedia app for iPhone
38	I have wikipedia.org in Opera's speed dial.
39	I keep Wikipedia set as my homepage, because I use it so often. Also, I like the aesthetic of the page: the globe, and all the languages remind me that we Americans are not alone in this world. For me it is symbolic of "first contact" with the Internet. When I turn on a browser, all the world is there to find. And I rely most heavily on Wikipedia to make sense of the vast information out there. Use it ten times more than any other internet thing. Hardly a day goes by that I don't look up something on Wikipedia. I love you guys, please keep up the good work.
