

FireFox

The screenshot shows the 'Insert link' dialog box in Firefox. The dialog has a title bar with 'Insert link' and a close button (X). It contains two text input fields: 'Target page or URL:' and 'Text to display:'. The 'Text to display:' field contains the placeholder text 'Text to be displayed'. Below the fields are two radio buttons: 'To a wiki page' and 'To an external web page'. At the bottom right, there are two buttons: 'Cancel' and 'Insert link'.

Opera

The screenshot shows the 'Insert link' dialog box in Opera. The dialog has a title bar with 'Insert link' and a close button (X). It contains two text input fields: 'Target page or URL:' and 'Text to display:'. The 'Text to display:' field contains the placeholder text 'Text to be displayed'. To the right of the 'Target page or URL:' field, there is a small icon and the text 'Page exists'. Below the fields are two radio buttons: 'To a wiki page' and 'To an external web page'. At the bottom right, there are two buttons: 'Cancel' and 'Insert link'.

Chrome

Insert link ✕

Target page or URL:  Page exists

Text to display:
Text to be displayed

To a wiki page To an external web page

